Real-estate wizard François Turcotte has merged old and new to create a mini-empire of deluxe vacation lodging at Mont-Ste-Anne and St-Ferréol-les-Neiges, a neighbouring community.

Turcotte owns and/or manages two superior developments in one of Quebec’s most prized outdoor sports areas and has a cosy cocoon for almost every type of traveller.

The first is Hébergement Mont-Sainte-Anne, a pair of condo buildings at the base of the mountain that are ideal for visitors who want to golf, hike or mountain bike in summer, and ski, snowboard or cross-country ski in winter. The snow-sports season will continue until April 21 (daily until April 14, then April 19-21).

Turcotte’s other domain is Chalets-Village Mont-Sainte-Anne, an umbrella for a variety of 60 townhouses, condos and historic country houses. The chalets and townhouses have between two and 32 bedrooms. The larger chalets are rare commodities, suitable for multi-generational family celebrations, bachelor or bachelorette parties, sports clubs or corporate retreats in beautiful surroundings.

Neighbourhood: This is the Côte-de-Beaupré, a stretch along the shore of the St. Lawrence River, about 40 kilometres northeast of Quebec City. All of Turcotte’s lodgings have well-equipped kitchens, but if you want to dine out, La Grange Brasserie Italienne is the newest go-to for good service, good prices and a menu of risotto, pasta, pizza and scallopini, with intriguing takes on desserts like cannelloni with ricotta, chocolate-caramel pizza and tiramisu with mascarpone and espresso.

Mont-Ste-Anne is the centre of sporting life year-round as well as a magnificent vantage point for breathtaking river views. On the tame side, you can ride the gondola or hike to an 800-metre summit. Ramping up the adrenalin, mountain biking is the highlight, featuring enduro, cross-country and downhill thrills. For learning and warm-ups, there’s a pump track with banked corners (berms) and rollers, as well as a kiddies’ section. The summer season begins May 18 for cross-country biking and June 22 for downhill.

Mont-Ste-Anne’s summers are heaven for families. Kids can use the playground at the mountain’s base and the gang can fuel up at the barbecue. (Check for opening hours.)

Le Grand Vallon, a par-72 golf course that is set to open May 3, has inspirational views of the mountain and packages with Hébergement Mont-Sainte-Anne, almost next door. You can even be picked up by golf cart. Condos: “The Hébergement condos are privately owned and rented out,” Turcotte said. “They’re well maintained, modern and supremely convenient, with indoor parking and literally steps from the lifts.”

The units are modern and practical, with lots of natural light and full-equipped kitchens. Some have balconies, bathtubs and fireplaces and there are washer-dryers on every floor.

The condo check-in desk and Mont-Sainte-Anne’s ticket office are in the same reception area, so that’s a super-handly advantage. And Hébergement guests can use an indoor pool at the Complexe au Pied du Mont, about one km away.

Chalets-Village: All of the Chalets-Village have modern bathrooms and designer kitchen with washer-dryers and dishwashers, and those that house more than 20 or so people have two dishwashers.

Each of the vintage chalets has its own backstory, so you are reliving Quebec’s history. The founder, Gilles Ethier, who is
